It didn't rain yesterday, and conse quently the Washingtons lost another game. The Senators are at their very best on days when the grounds are too damp to permit of a game, for then they are certain not to be pushed farther down the basebull ladder; but it is almost a moral certainty that, given a fair day, the Manningites will fall down, and it

In the third inning, after Farrell had earned second by virtue of a beautiful bang, Grady was sent to first by one of Yeager's swift shoots finding a resting place between two of Grady's ribs. Then when Clarke took his turn, and when he had two strikes called on him, he winked Grady that he should make a try for secmunication to Farrell that he was t make a sudden dash for third, for he. Col. Bill Clarke, the Senatorial captain, was about to make a mighty swipe at the ball, and the hit was surely going to be good for a triple. But for some unknown reason Colonel Clarke renegged without, however, having the thoughtfulness to ommunicate his changed strategical move to either of the base runners. When Farrell saw his Chieftain let the ball that was supposed to be knocked into BOSTON WON IN TWO INNINGS. where he was, but Grady had been sig-naled to steal a base, and steal it he was bound to. So he started in the direction of the bag where Farrell was restlow player had not budged a step. The support given him by the rest of the team result could be easily figured out by any kindergarten student of the ethics of baseball; Farrell was forced to run and he was promptly put out, although Grady did reach the second bag. Over on the players bench Manager Manning thought things that would shock his most inti-mate friends. Then again, in the ninth inning, when the act had opened up as though the local men might do something in the run getting line, Waldron spolled all such chances by trying to stretch-s single into a two-base hit. One man was out-Clingman-and Lee had reached first on a pass. Waldron sent the ball spinning out toward the right field, but it was quickly returned by "Ducky" Holmes, and while it was a clean single, it did not hiladelphin's Work at the Bat Re. sults in Victory. PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Philadel-phia started right in to but and got a total of seven runs in the first two innings. The

at all resemble the double that its proprietor endeavored to make it. By the time Waidron got within hailing distance of second, Gleazen was there smiling, and with the bail waiting to tag the Senator. Again did Manager Manning say hateful things about the team and Waidron in particular. These are only two isolated specimens of the stupidity of the home players. There was no headwork to their pany and at times it degenerated into the verickt sort of amateur bail.

Col. Wyatt Lee was sent in to do the pitching, and, while he worked hard, he was unfortunate to such an extent that the spectators very kindly advised Manager Manning how to run ris own business by calling upon him to take Colonel Lee from the game. But the colonel is a doughty young chap, and the fact that the Tigers were a mite successful in hitting his various styles of curves had no apparent effect upon his nerve, for in the last inning he was working fully as hard as at any other time during the contest. Col. Bill Clarke was doing the honers at the receiving end of the combination and, barring some punk actions on the part of his intellect, he did good work. Some of his throws to second were beautiful to behold and invariably nipped in the bud any aspirations the visitors may have had to have their names appear in the stolen base column of the score. By far the most sessational work of the matines was contributed by Barrett, out in centre field. One of his catches in particular was of such a brilling to deer as to cause the spectators to cheer for several moments.

ticular was of such a brilliant order as to cause the spectators to cheef for several moments.

Signor Coughlin tried a play that was so old that it had been foraciten by even Mr. Haskell, who tried the patience of the £.000 spectators by his picturesque umpiring. Barrett had ambied around as of far as the territory guarded by Coughlin and the Senatorial third baseman had buff throw over to Lee. Barrett, aiso, had forgetten there was such a bit of stratecy on the basehall books, and when he was likely as a such a bit of stratecy on the basehall books, and when he was likely down to deal with. Haskell was infermed as to the base hits in all portions of the outfield. Nothing was too difficult for him yesterday, and he was too difficult for him yesterday, and he was too difficult for him yesterday, and he was easily the popular favorite on the grounds.

doesn't seem to matter very much whether their opponents are an American League team or the Swampoodle Stars or some of the other prominent amanteur local aggregations. Certainly, the exhibition of the national game as given yesterday by Capt. Bill Clarke and his cohort, was about as stupid as can be imagined. Here are two sample plays indulged in by the Senators, which will give the dear reader a line on the article of ball the local fellows put up:

In the third inning, after Farrell had carned second by virtue of a beautiful the pitching for the locals.

Farrell made a great catch of Casey's hit in the first inning. He was compelled to run into centre field to accompile the play but he pulled off the play amid great cheering. Farrell's error was the result of over confidence. Of late he has been going after grounders with considerable caution, but yesterday, on Holmer' drive in the fifth laming, he was a trifle careless and the result was that the hit went through him. But, all in all, Farrell is playing a rattling good game at second and is hitting the hall about as well as any member of the local forces.

Coughlin made a peculiar play in the fifth. Casey sent a slow one down to the third baseman, who ran in for it, but slipped and fell just as he secured the ball. It was necessary for the Senator to throw the sphere to first while in a sitting posture but his aim was accurate and the ball reached Jordan some time before Casey touched the bag.

VICTORY FOR THE BUREAU. The Printers Unable to Win From

Once again the hoo-doo that has been seeping such close tab on Mr. Ashley (he that sends 'em over the plate for the Government Printing Office contingent of ball tossers) followed him into the game yesterday at the National Ball Park, when he essayed to dish up the goosers to the nine Bureauites from Southwest.

Ashley did all that any pitcher, whether professional or amateur, fould possibly do to win his game, but his mates cannot expect the same to be slid of them, for

to win his game, but his mates cannot expect the same to be slid of them, for had it not been for several costly errors at the vital part of the game, there would be a different tale to write.

The Bureaultes felt a bit chesty after having dragged the doughty Census team to earth, a feat which no other team has so far accomplished, and they sunstered out to do things to Ashley's delivery that would even matters up for the defeat which they surfered at the hands of the typos about a week ago.

The typesetters were the first to wield the ash rod and they succeeded in getting two of their number on the sucks and when another typo swatted the leather into the outfield there was one run slated for them. The money makers had no such luck in their half of the first nor their half of any inning until the fifth, when they were presented with two of the ones; that count, by their rivals, and through the courtesy of their friends they received two more in the eighth, making a total of four, which number of runs was found to be all that was necessary to capture the game.

The men with the black ink stains or their fingers put their heads together in the fifth, and after a heated discussion they decided the the the needed another they needed another.

total of four, which number of runs was found to be all that was necessary to capture the game.

The men with the black ink stains on their fingers put their heads together in the fifth, and after a heated discussion they decided that they needed another run to make the affair appear as a legitimate contest without any faking, and acting according to the instructions given them by the leader of the gang, they got the needed run and were momentarily happy. Momentarily, for their happiness listed just long enough for them to take their positions in the tall grass, when several of the inflieders began to try their wings and incidentally to see how far from the initial bag they could throw the sphere without throwing it out of the grounds. By this performance the men with the green ink stains on their digits got two men across the counting siab, which tied the score. One, two, three was the order of things in the next two innings for both sides, but the men from Fourteenth Street had something up their sleeves which they were going to spring on their opponents in the eighth inning.

In that fatail inning they got a man on the initial hassock and were not satisfied until he had advanced another ninety feet nearer the rubber. Another of the greenback makers hynotized the twirler and drew a base on balls, then a fellow certificate maker ripped out one to centre fielder, and the man who had been occupying the second cas him wended his way homeward, and was quickly followed by the ffeet-footed hynotist who had been an occupant of the premier pag. This made four runs for the men from the red brick baliding on Fourteenth Street and set them two to the good, which lead they maintained until the close of the game. The printers came in feet their ninth swat at the horsehide, but were unable to do anything. The score:

"My disease was displacement and niceration of the uterus, and I was in a terrible condition with pain and weakness and had given up all hopes of ever being well again." writes Mrs. Harry A. Brown, of Crono. Penobscot Co. Me. "Had doctored with four different doctors within four months, and instead of getting better was growing weaker all the time. I decided to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Pelleta,' as I had heard of the many onese resulting from their use. I bought five bottles and feit so much better after taking them that I kept on until I am as well as ever in my life, and to Dr. Plerce all the praise is due. I cannot say enough in favor of his medicines. Before I began taking your medicines I only weighed one bryndred and twenty pounds. I gained forty pounds in six months. I shall doctor no more with home doctors, as it is only waste of money. I am now in perfect health, thanks to Dr. Pierce."
